

THE NEWS.

Our morning report contains not much of interest except the foreign news. According to that, France is still itching to interfere in our affairs.

Our afternoon report brings a rumor of the defeat of Sherman, but it is looked upon as a canard.

Gen. Grant is on his way to Washington. We fear the Lieut. Generalship just now, will not result in any advantage towards the prosecution of the war.

Gold is 61¢.

Reputation Extraordinary.

The Madison Patriot is so anxious to approve of the rebels that it commands the recent repudiation of their currency and thinks it is a strong point in their favor. It says it would be a blessing if greenbacks were not worth a cent on the dollar, and gold was made valueless by law, till after the war. It says government money is worth too much—and too much of that is abroad. We have no doubt the Richmond papers would fully concur in these bright ideas.

Copperhead Howlings.

We can always tell when there are preparations being made to punish the rebels and destroy the rebellion, by the hue and cry of the Copperhead journals about the enormous expenses of the war and the desperate condition into which the country is being plunged.

As long as the thing can go along quietly, and their brethren are not to be hurt, they have no complaints, though the expenditures of the government be all the same, but the opening of a campaign is the signal for them to set up their head, probably to divert the attention of the government, and ward off the blow from their fellows.

Precisely what they would do if they had the management of public affairs, they do not point out to us, but most of them claim to be in favor of the restoration of the Union. How they could restore it without coercion, when the leaders in the confederate states have always avowed their determination never under any circumstances to return to the Union is a problem they have not bothered their heads with. They are too intent on throwing every obstacle within their power in the way of the government to reflect calmly and candidly upon the best mode or to aid in the most efficient measures to finish up the rebellion.

The Boston Courier very naturally and very properly comes to the rescue of slavery which has been stabbed in the house of its friends. It says that "Mr. James Brooks, the New York Member of Congress, can hardly fail to perceive before long that he has put his foot on treacherous ground;" declares that it has no confidence in the soundness of his prognostications that slavery is dead; expresses surprise that he should repeat "a sort of falsehood on this subject, to which interested parties have striven to give currency," and affirms that "the consent of Northern sentiment to the dogma that 'Southern slavery is dead,' would not effect that result; but would, on the other hand, render a restoration 'Union impossible.'"

In fine, "Mr. Brooks' theory could only lead to irretrievable and permanent disunion." Nothing but the salvation of slavery will save the country, according to the Courier.

Speaking of the fact that many of the soldiers will be at home to vote in the New Hampshire election on the 5th of March, the Portland Advertiser gives of a howl of indignation. It says:

"The veterans who pledge themselves to vote the abolition ticket will graciously be permitted to return home to vote, but none others."

Now the Advertiser well knows that those only of the "veterans" who have re-enlisted are allowed a furlough—and they are at home in all other States as well as in New Hampshire. Three regiments have just returned to Maine. If the democratic soldiers (supposing there are any) had re-enlisted they would have been at home to vote likewise.

The Lost Steamships.—A statistical writer says that the Bohemian makes the twenty-fourth steamship which has been lost at sea since the commencement of communication by steam with Europe. These vessels were named as follows, and were lost in the annexed order, viz:

President Columbia, Humboldt, City of Glasgow, City of Philadelphia, Franklin, Arctic, Pacific, Lyonnais, Tempest, Austria, Canadian (No. 2), New York, Indian, Argus, Hungarian, Connacht, United States, Canadian, (No. 2), North Britain, Caledonia, Anglo-Saxon, Norwegian, Bohemian.

A tribe of dwarfs has been found in Africa, whose ears reach to the ground, and are so wide that when they lie down one ear serves as a matress, the other as a covering.—Exchange.

President Lincoln ought to import a few to mix with and improve his "freed men." Such ears would be invaluable in a contraband camp.—Madison Patriot.

No use of importing. Let him send "Pump" right down there.

The New York News denounces James Brooks, editor of the New York Express, as an Abolitionist, because in a speech in Congress he has declared as his conviction that slavery is dead. The News is so irritated that it is personally abusive.

—Dr. Bow's Southern Review says:

"It is idle for us to hope longer to enjoy peacefully the proceeds of his (the negro's) labor when at this moment 80,000 of his color are organized, and hold arms in their hands to free their fellows."

STATE NEWS.

The Oshkosh Courier reports the quota for that city full, under both calls. The Milwaukee News gives an account of the falling down of the Newhall warehouse, by which some 15,000 or 20,000 bushels of wheat were precipitated to the ground, a portion of it falling upon the flat roof of an adjoining grocery, crushing it in. Fortunately no one was in the grocery at the time. Most of the wheat will be saved, the loss being estimated not to exceed $1,000. The Wisconsin Landowner publishes a letter from Hon. W. D. McIndoe, announcing that all the surveyed vacant public lands in the northern part of Wisconsin will be open for entry as soon as the railroad lands can be listed and the business of the land office will admit of the preparation of abstracts of land to be offered. The same paper publishes a call of the principal lumbermen for 5,000 men to work in the pines.—The Madison Patriot notices the death at Omaha, of W. W. Wyman, for many years connected with the press of Wisconsin. He assisted in getting out the first paper printed in Madison, and was afterwards editor of the Express, Patriot and Statesman, successive papers which he started in that town. He was in his 54th year.

THE LAST HOURS OF THE REBEL CONGRESS.—The last hours of Congress, which descended at the Capitol on Thursday, at 12 o'clock, was not the calm and tranquil consciousness of a life well spent and good done. The body writhed in the throes of expiring debauch on Wednesday night, over a bill to repeal the section of the military bill relative to farmers. Members, whose souls of political life were fast running out, delivered themselves of their last speeches, and fell back speechless into seats that were soon to know them no more forever. Others, conscious of the approach of their last hours, set their desks in order and cleared their political house of old bills, loose stationery, &c., each admiringly upon his own estate.

Charley Kent (the "brave major" of "Our House") was the gastronomic and spiritual undertaker on the occasion, and served up, in an ante room, the last supper of doomed members, who seated their gulf in slices of boned turkey and bumper of French brandy. The scene was affecting indeed, and cannot be described in this brief obituary notice. Required in pace.—Richmond Examiner, Feb. 22.

—The intense cold of the winter has penetrated everywhere. The unexpected low temperature in Italy has already been noted. Heavy falls of snow have occurred in the South of France, and the following announcement comes from Suez: "The severity of the weather has been experienced even at Suez, where the utmost consternation prevailed in consequence of the discovery of ice—a phenomenon previously unknown on the borders of the Red Sea."

Harp or Ham.—The White Cloud Chief pays the following compliment to a St. Joseph editor:

"The editor of the St. Joseph News, owing to the bareness of his own brain, has been driven to the necessity of pilfering very old, very stale, and very vulgar wit, in reply to a squife of ours. But let him go, if it makes him happy. We have no objection to his making a dog of himself, but we don't like to see him appropriate another dog's vomit."

—An editor out West exhibited, the other day, an astonishing instance of absent-mindedness, by copying from an exchange paper one of his own articles and heading it, "Wretched attempt at wit."

—A girl, hearing the lady of the house, at dinner, asking her husband to bring "Dompey and Son" with him when he came home to tea, laid two extra plates on the supper table for the supposed visitors.

The total area of Schleswig-Holstein and Lauenburg, the Duchies now in dispute, is not quite equal to 7,500 English acres. Holstein covers 3,000, Schleswig 3,400 and Lauenburg 420. The first has a population of 544,112, the second 409,907, the third 50,147. Holstein has seven towns, of which Kiel is the chief, 45,324 inhabitants. Kiel is the capital, however, with 17,511, and takes the lead in social rank, owing to its famous University and fine ports.

LOCAL MATTERS.

The Habens Corpus Case. We alluded last week to a case before our Supreme Court, involving the question of the constitutionality of the act of Congress authorizing the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus by the President, in cases where he deemed the general interests demanded it, and his subsequent proclamation in September last. The opinion of the Court was read on Saturday morning by Judge Paine, sustaining the constitutionality of the act and denying the application for the writ. The Madison Journal after having quoted the cases upon which the court relied, authority gives the following synopsis of the opinion:

Judge Paine continues, that upon the doctrine of these cases, though with some hesitation, he concludes that the act of Congress must be sustained. The Court having formerly held, that it required a legislative act to suspend the writ of habeas corpus, it seemed to him that the Legislature must judge when the emergency had arisen that justified its suspension.

On this view there was "ground for plausible argument founded on the language of the act of Congress, that it is merely an attempt to transfer bodily to the President the entire legislative functions on this subject." "But a law," continues Judge Paine, "must not be judged by its artificial structure merely, but according to its substance and effect. And I have finally come to the conclusion that although this act professes to confer on the President authority to suspend the privilege of the writ whenever in his judgment the public safety shall require it, during the present rebellion, yet that it is itself an expression of the legislative judgment that the time has already arrived when the public safety requires the legislature to provide for a suspension, and that it does provide for a suspension, not absolute, but to take effect according to the judgment of the President whether the authority conferred shall be exercised in particular cases or not. Suppose that instead of being in its present form, this act had expressly declared that the public safety required provision to be made for a suspension of the privilege, and had then provided that during the present rebellion the writ should be suspended in all cases in which the President might elect to have himself and his subordinates relieved from the duty of obeying the writ; I think, if such had been its form, it could fairly have been sustained within the reasoning of the cases already cited. The Legislature would have then exercised its own function of determining that the emergency had arisen requiring the privilege to be suspended, and would have made general provision for it leaving to the President, however, a discretionary power about using the authority conferred in particular cases." Judge P. then shows that the effect of the present law is identical with that of the act he had supported, and that the difference is merely a verbal one.

The Right Way.

The following from the Syracuse Journal is in a certain degree, applicable in this city, and we recommend it to the particular attention of those whom it hits:

"Can anybody explain satisfactorily why a lady meeting a gentleman on the sidewalk should insist upon turning him off into the gutter? It has grown to be a custom, when people thus encounter, not being acquainted, for a lady to run a gentleman down at once, unless he gets out of the way. She devotes not an inch from an air line, but ignores all knowledge of the existence or presence of a body approaching in the opposite direction. There is something positively disgusting in this practice. Sometimes you meet three or four ladies—girls perhaps, not out of their teens,—forming a platoon across the whole breadth of the walk. They pay no attention to you, than if you were a shadow that might be passed over without any sense of contact. You send down to the curb-stone, and await the transit of the avalanche of crinoline. Why should this be submitted to? Why should not one of these females, recognizing your bodily presence and right to the use of the pavement, drop behind the others, and permit you to avoid the humiliating display of your insignificance on the edge of the curbstone or down in the gutter? These examples of what we consider downright vulgarity, are of constant occurrence. It often happens that mere chits, not out of pantaloons, bear square down upon the octogenarian and compel him to the oblique movement to avoid a collision."

The Right Way.

The following from the Syracuse Journal is to a certain degree, applicable in this city, and we recommend it to the particular attention of those whom it hits:

"Can anybody explain satisfactorily why a lady meeting a gentleman on the sidewalk should insist upon turning him off into the gutter? It has grown to be a custom, when people thus encounter, not being acquainted, for a lady to run a gentleman down at once, unless he gets out of the way. She deviates not an inch from an air line, but ignores all knowledge of the existence or presence of a body approaching in the opposite direction. There is something positively disgusting in this practice. Sometimes you meet three or four ladies—girls, perhaps, not out of their teens,—forming a platoon across the breadth of the walk. They pay no more attention to you, than if you were a shadow that might be passed over without any sense of contact. You send down to the curb-stone, and await the transit of the avalanche of crinoline. Why should this be submitted to? Why should not one of these females, recognizing your bodily presence and right to the use of the pavement, drop behind the others, and permit you to avoid the humiliating display of your insignificance on the edge of the curb-stone or down in the gutter? These examples of what we consider downright vulgarity, are of constant occurrence. It often happens that mere chits, not out of pantaloons, bear square down upon the octogonarian and compel him to the oblique movement to avoid a collision."

THE ATTENTION of tax-payers is hereby called to the provisions of the United States Excise Law relative to the assessment of personal taxes.

By the sixth section of the act of July 1, 1862, it is made the duty of the Collector of Internal Revenue, Assessors, or corporations, made liable to any annual duty, license or tax, on or before the FIRST MONDAY IN MAY IN EACH YEAR, to make a list of return to the Assistant Assessors, of all the persons or corporations whose names are on the list of the persons or whose feet charged with a special tax, and the business or occupation liable to pay any license.

Every person who fails to make such return by the time appointed, shall be assessed by the Assessor according to the best information which he can obtain; and in such case, the Assessor is required to add fifty per cent to the amount of the items of which he is in doubt.

But the working assessment is quite different, and very much improved.

The workmanship is also much better than the old Drill. We will not claim that the Badger is better made than other Drills, but will say that it is made by experienced workmen, under my own supervision, and will stand up to the test of wear and tear.

And from the valuation and taxation of which it stands, it will be compared with any person present, and bringing to the rendezvous for shipment of Freight, superior to any other route.

An Express baggage Train

leaves New York daily, making close connections through to all points West and quicker than ever before made on any line.

For Freight Rates, inquire of J. G. Catman, 211 Broadway, New York, or James S. Dunlap, 565 Street, New York, agent for Freight, agent, 94 Church street, Chicago, under the New Sherman House, E. S. Spence, Northwestern Agent, Genl. Agent.
